February 2019 Edition

From Your Vice Moderator

Leah, my wife, loves to share her words of wisdom with our girls and me. She likes to use certain Southern idioms to express herself. She heard expressions like “Oh my stars and garters” and “Keep your dipper in your own bucket” from her mother. As a transplant Michigan man, there are times when I have to ask her the meaning of such Dixie-land slang. She just smiles and shakers her head at my stupidity!

Here is a short list of sayings that I have learned while living in the great Commonwealth of Kentucky. Do you recognize any of them?

*That dog won't hunt
If the creek don't rise
Rode hard and put up wet
If I had my druthers
Full as a tick*

If you have any that are not on this list; I would love to hear them. This Yankee Doodle-Dummy needs a crash course in Western Kentucky dialect!
